Humanities

Art History

The graduate program in Art History aims to bring students into stimulating and meaningful engagement with artistic production across history by examining the full range of expression in the visual arts, from architecture, painting, and sculpture to performance, construction and installation work, from both a formal and a theoretical perspective.

Aware that the embodied eye is part of the mind, the members of the department teach critical thinking through focus on space, objects, and artistic practices. We aim to contextualize art and architecture in historically specific ways that situate works within systems of belief, habits of visual literacy, social and political ideologies, patterns of sacred and secular discourse, and currencies of global and transnational exchange. We recognize and embrace the inherent interdisciplinarity of art history, which, by its nature, serves as a portal into history, culture, religion, societal organization, rhetoric, literature, mathematics and science. Graduate students are thus encouraged to incorporate an interdisciplinary focus into their coursework and research when appropriate.

Our chief areas of concentration include:

- Ancient Mediterranean (Ancient Egyptian, Greek and Roman);
- Medieval, Renaissance, and Baroque Europe;
- Modern and Contemporary Art and Architecture in Europe, the United States and Africa;
- Ancient Americas.

We have close relationships with other programs in the humanities and social sciences. They include Classics, Comparative Literature, History, Religion and Women’s Studies, as well as interdisciplinary programs such as Ancient Mediterranean Studies, Medieval Studies, Middle Eastern and South Asian Studies, African Studies, and Film Studies.

Art History offers a doctoral program that explores cultural, formal, and theoretical concerns central to the visual arts. Academic concentrations include the art and architecture of: the ancient Mediterranean (Egypt, Greece, and Rome); the Ancient Americas; Medieval, Renaissance, and Baroque Europe; modern and contemporary art and architecture in Europe and the United States.
A number of Emory programs offer Graduate concentrations, organized sequences of courses that provide a systematic interdisciplinary training culminating in the award of a certificate. Concentrations are available in Film Studies, Women’s Studies, and more.

Facilities

Michael C. Carlos Hall
The Art History Department is located in Carlos Hall, a building of considerable architectural distinction on the main quadrangle. Designed in 1916 by Henry Hornbostel, Carlos Hall was remodeled in 1985 by Michael Graves, who later designed the adjacent Michael C. Carlos Museum, which is used extensively in teaching and student presentations. Within Carlos Hall, graduate students have their own study room, the Lyman Center.

Michael C. Carlos Museum
The Michael C. Carlos Museum houses an internationally renowned collection of art, focusing on Ancient Mediterranean (Egyptian, Greek, and Roman), Ancient American, and African art. The Museum also includes an important collection of works on paper ranging from the Renaissance through Contemporary art. The department’s graduate students are actively and extensively involved with the Museum’s collections through internships, exhibitions and special projects.

High Museum of Art
Graduate students enjoy free membership at the High Museum of Art, which has major collections of 19th and 20th century American and decorative art, significant European pieces, modern and contemporary art, photography, African art and folk art. Under internships, graduate students may work closely with curators in crafting exhibitions and programs.

Visual Resources Library
The Art History Department maintains a Visual Resources Library (VRL) in Carlos Hall of over 130,000 digital images in the Luna/Insight database. This local collection of images reflects the teaching and research interests of Art History Department faculty. All Emory faculty, students and staff have access to the Luna/Insight image database. In addition to Luna/Insight, all Emory faculty, students and staff have access to the ARTstor image database created by the Mellon Foundation. ARTstor contains over one million images in the arts, architecture, humanities and sciences.

The Visual Resource Library staff work with faculty and students to provide instructional support in the use of Luna/Insight and ARTstor.

Several library assistants positions are available every year for Art History Department graduate students who would like to learn more about visual resources.

Libraries
Woodruff Library and Pitts Theological Library house substantial holdings of books and periodicals for the study of art history. In addition, Woodruff Library has an important collection of rare books and manuscripts, many of which have been acquired for the Art History Department.

Graduate Exchange Program
with the Art History Institute of Leiden
We have initiated a graduate exchange program, entitled “Exchanging Bodies of Knowledge,” with the Art History programs at the University of Leiden in the Netherlands. This program allows Emory students to spend a term at one of the Leiden departments and graduate students from Leiden have the opportunity of visiting Emory for a term. At the host institution, students take seminars or tutorials, working closely with distinguished faculty of their choice, particularly in the fields of ancient, early modern, and modern/contemporary art.

Travel Seminars and Support for Graduate Student Field Research
The department conducts graduate seminars with a significant travel component that complements classroom and library experience. In addition, the department offers its own travel grants, including the Thomas W. Lyman Memorial Travel Fund and a grant from the Henry Luce Foundation to support dissertation research in American Art. Travel resources are also available from the Laney Graduate School.

Summer Archaeological Field Research at the Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace
Students have the opportunity to participate in archaeological field research at the ancient Greek Sanctuary of the Great Gods of Samothrace, place of the mystery cult of the Megaloi Theoi and one of the most important Hellenistic sanctuaries in the Eastern Mediterranean.
Requirements for the Ph.D.
The program emphasizes both broad education in the history of art and highly developed specialization. It is designed to take approximately six years, depending on the student’s previous preparation.

Coursework
Students entering without a Master’s complete a minimum of three years of coursework (six semesters of three courses each semester or 72 hours), including the required seminar in theory and methodology. Students entering in advanced standing complete two years of coursework. All students participate in a three and one-half day teacher training workshop conducted by the Graduate School and a departmental teaching tutorial (2 credits per semester) during the first year in which they serve as teaching assistants.

Language Examinations
Reading knowledge of two research-related languages (usually French, German, Italian, or Spanish) is required of all Ph.D. candidates. For specific subfields, additional language facility may be required.

Qualifying Paper and Master’s Degree
Students entering the program without a master’s degree expand a seminar paper into a qualifying paper which should meet the scholarly standards for publication, usually during the third year of coursework. The master’s degree is then awarded when students have been advanced to candidacy upon completing the Ph.D. examination.

Doctoral Examinations
The Ph.D. examinations cover a major and a minor field in art history. In consultation with major and minor advisors, the student determines the precise scope of the fields and topical emphases. Students generally take the examinations in their third or at the beginning of their fourth year.

Dissertation
The dissertation is a substantial and professional work of original scholarship. At the outset, a committee, usually chaired by the major field advisor, assists the student in preparing a dissertation prospectus, which explains the research project and identifies the principal sources and methodologies to be employed. Committee approval and an oral defense of the dissertation are required.

Training in Teaching
All doctoral students participate in the Laney Graduate School’s program, TATTO (Teaching Assistant Training and Teaching Opportunity), designed to develop student expertise in teaching. This means that in their second year, students teach sections of the art history survey, and third-year students assist a faculty member in teaching an upper division course. Students entering with a master’s degree in Art History teach sections in their first year and assist with an upper level course in their second year. Dean’s Teaching Fellowships are available competitively through the graduate school in the fifth year for students admitted to Ph.D. candidacy.

Students
Incoming classes are kept small to ensure a close working relationship between students and professors—we generally accept 4 – 5 students each year, and the total enrollment is usually between 30 – 35 students.

Every incoming student is awarded financial support which covers tuition and provides a stipend for five years (subject to annual review). Our website has information about current students at www.arthistory.emory.edu/programs/currentgrads.htm.

Recently completed dissertations include:
- The Cavaliere Carlo Rainaldi (1611 – 1691): Architecture and Identity in Seventeenth-Century Rome
- Greek Bronze Hydriai
- Sacred Gates: Propyla and Propylaia in Greek Sanctuaries
- The Virgin Sacrificed: Images of Iphigeneia and Polyxena in Greek and Roman Art
- The World Made Flesh: Word and Image in Francesco da Barberino’s Documenti d’Amore
- From Minimalism to Magazines: Toward a Meta-Medium
- Picturing the Modern Self: Politics, Identity and Self-Fashioning in Lagos, Nigeria, 1861 – 1934
- Envisioning Greater Nicoya: Ceramic Figural Art of Costa Rica and Nicaragua, c. 800 BCE – 1522 CE
- On Site-Specificity: A Genealogy
- The Lithographs of Robert Rauschenberg
- The Carrara Herbal in Context: Imitation, Exemplarity, and Invention in Late Fourteenth-Century Padua
- Invention in Late Fourteenth-Century Padua
- The Afterlife of Gemma Augustea
- The Afterlife of Gemma Augustea

Current dissertation projects nearing completion include:
- Politics of Place: Landscape Painting in Imperial Rome and its Environ
- Templum Divorum: Architecture, Image and the Divinity or the Roman Emperor
- Quidam lapis preciosus qui vocatu Cammaheu: The Medieval Afterlife of Gemma Augustea

Placement
Our graduates have been successful in finding employment both at academic institutions and at museums. Our graduates teach at Princeton University, Northwestern University, University of the South, the Art Institute of Boston at Lesley University, the University of South Florida, Appalachian State University, Berry College, Pennsylvania State University, California State University –Northridge, Towson University, California College of the Arts, Piedmont College, Florida Gulf

Placement
Our graduates have been successful in finding employment both at academic institutions and at museums. Our graduates teach at Princeton University, Northwestern University, University of the South, the Art Institute of Boston at Lesley University, the University of South Florida, Appalachian State University, Berry College, Pennsylvania State University, California State University –Northridge, Towson University, California College of the Arts, Piedmont College, Florida Gulf
Coast University, Sacred Heart University, Tulane University, Herron School of Art, University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, Kennesaw State University, Savannah College of Art and Design-Atlanta and Savannah, the Atlanta College of Art, and Emory University. Graduates have taken curatorships at the Indianapolis Museum of Art, the San Diego Museum for African Art, the Michael C. Carlos Museum, and the High Museum of Art, and directorships at the Hirshhorn Museum and Walker Arts Center. They have secured post-doctoral fellowships at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Faculty
The department is noted for its interdisciplinarity, both across its four cohorts and through its strong links with other departments and programs. The department has 12 permanent faculty positions, complemented by associated faculty based in the Michael C. Carlos Museum, the Department of Classics and the African American Studies Department.

The research interests of the faculty include:

- GAY ROBINS: Ancient Egyptian art (with an emphasis on issues of gender and sexuality); non-royal tombs at Thebes and Amarna.
- BONNA D. WESCOAT: Ancient Greek sacred architecture; Greek iconography, Hellenistic art and culture; field work in the Sanctuary of the Great Gods, Samothrace.
- ELIZABETH PASTAN: Gothic art and architecture; the Gothic Revival; medieval stained glass; the Bayeux Embroidery; issues of monumental pictorial narratives, literacy, program, patronage and production.
- C. JEAN CAMPBELL: Urban culture and the arts of late medieval and early Renaissance Italy; vernacular poetics and the visual arts in the early Renaissance; making, meaning and imitative practice; art history and hermeneutics.
- SARAH C. MCPHEE: Southern Baroque art and architecture, with an emphasis on the architecture, urbanism, and sculpture of Italy; history of women in early modern Italy, especially Rome; artistic biography.
- WALTER MELION: Northern Renaissance and Baroque art, with an emphasis on Netherlandish art and art theory; early modern printmaking; meditative and mnemonic imagery; Jesuit studies.
- TODD CRONAN: Modern European art from 1850 to 1950; theoretical issues around intention, affect, expression and audience; art and politics of the interwar years.
- JUDITH ROHRER: European architecture, modern and contemporary (with emphasis on the architecture of Barcelona); space and gender theory; architecture of social responsibility; national and cultural identity.
- SIDNEY KASFIR (EMERITA): Contemporary art and the global market (Kenya, Uganda); Warrior Theatre and the ritualized body; Samburu blacksmiths (Kenya); Idoma masquerade and sacred kingship (Nigeria).
- REBECCA STONE: Ancient Andean and Costa Rican art; shamanism; the fiber arts; visual perception.
- DOROTHY FLETCHER: graduate pedagogy.

More information about our faculty, including publications, areas of interest and curricula vitae, can be found at our website: www.arthistory.emory.edu/faculty.

Administrative Faculty
WALTER MELION
Chair
BONNA WESCOAT
Director of Graduate Studies

Contact information
Director of Graduate Studies, Art History Department Emory University 581 S. Kilgo Circle, 133 Carlos Hall, Atlanta, GA 30322 404-727-6282

Requests for Additional Information:
RECRUITMENT AND ADMISSIONS
James T. Laney School of Graduate Studies 209 Administration Building 201 Dowman Drive Atlanta, GA 30322

404-727-6028 (ask for the Art History program) Fax: 404-727-4990
http://www.graduateschool.emory.edu
http://www.arhistory.emory.edu

Laney Graduate School Degree Programs
Anthropology
Art History
Behavioral Sciences and Health Education
Bioethics
Biological and Biomedical Sciences
Biochemistry, Cell and Developmental Biology
Cancer Biology
Genetics and Molecular Biology
Immunology and Molecular Pathogenesis
Microbiology and Molecular Genetics
Molecular and Systems Pharmacology
Neuroscience
Nutrition and Health Sciences
Population Biology, Ecology, and Evolution
Biomedical Engineering
Biostatistics
Business
Chemistry
Clinical Psychology
Cognition and Development (Psychology)
Comparative Literature
Computer Science and Informatics
Development Practice Economics
Educational Studies
English
Environmental Health Sciences
Epidemiology
Film Studies
French
History
Graduate Institute of the Liberal Arts
Health Services Research and Health Policy
Mathematics
MD/PhD
Music
Neuroscience and Animal Behavior (Psychology)
Nursing
Philosophy
Physics
Political Science
Religion
Sociology
Spanish
Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies